SGA discusses Amendments, Student Center Renovations

In a session characterized by much discussion and slow action, votes on the proposed amendments to the constitution and a pledge of support to effort to renovate the Student Center got much of the attention during Monday night's SGA meeting.

When SGA committees reported, Dean Duke of the Student Concerns Committee listed four issues which have been under consideration in his committee. A split parking fee for onesemester students and after-hours parking in the Bader Gym lot were discussed with the administration and their response was reported by Duke. He also mentioned the men's sunroof, still in committee, as his commitee's pet project. Duke proposed a plan to be presented to the administration allowing married students to park in 13 spaces in the small parking lot next to the BCW building. Renee Gilliam and Kim McCaskill, representatives for the married students and off-campus students respectively, said that the proposal did not include enough space for the groups they represented. Gilliam also mentioned the inconvenience of the location. Duke asked that they determine the number of cars represented in their constiuencies and report back to him so that the matter could again be pursued by the committee.

Constitution and By-laws chairman

Lynn Hayes apologized to the group for not publishing the proposed amendments as is required by the constitution. With the approval of all but two members present, he introduced the amendments. The amendment adopted in last night's meeting, after much discussion and a roll call vote, stated that upperclass dorm representatives will be elected as soon as possible in the fall of each school year. Defeated was an amendment which called for these elections to be held in the spring of the preceding year. Also passed was an amendment that stated that two unexcused absences from the SGA meetings would result in that representative being dismissed from continued to page 2

'Special' Dorms See Need for Renovation

by Missy Epps

"We're taught as Christians not to complain about our physical condition, but some things need to be mentioned in order to help," said Loren Rasbury, senior and R.A. in Paul Gray Hall.

"Paul Gray is a nice building, yet it needs some renovations. The dorm is where a student spends most of his time. A dorm should be visibly appealing so he can take pride in his home The school has done something but there still needs to be more things done," Rasbury said.

Paul Gray along with Hall-Roland are two of the oldest buildings on the campus. Paul Gray was bult in 1928 and Hall-Roland in 1921.

Feelings about the need to renovate the two dorms are prevalent among the residents of those dorms. "I've lived in Hall-Roland ever since I've been at F-HC. Having been an R.A., I've seen mothers cry and fathers 'steam' when they have to leave their daughters in such poor conditions," said Donna Harden, a senior. "I've heard too many promises and seen no see its of what the school's going to do with our dorm,

"Two of the most serious concerns we have are Paul Gray and Hall-Roland," said Dr. Milton Sewell, Vice-President for Institutional Advancement. "More people right now are interested in student scholarship aid than they are in other things," added Sewell. Sewell estimates that "It'll probably take $250 to half a milion dollars on each building" to renovate.

The Heritage and Horizons Campaign Phase II is a two-year campaign to raise $2.2 million to raise for various needs of the school: $400,000 to complete the Bible Communication World-Evangelism Building, $600,000 to improve instructional assistance, $700,000 to provide student assistants, $200,000 to provide campus and building improvements for students and faculty, $50,000 to provide transportation and $250,000 to increase the endowment fund.

The phonothon, which was conducted by students, faculty, and other supporters raised about $50,000 for the college. Money from the $100 Benefit dinner December 3 featuring Zig Ziglar will also go into the campaign

Apart from the physical conditions of the two dorms many admit there is something "special" about them. "What our building lacks in physical beauty, the relationships between all our residents make up for. The atmosphere we share is love and no matter what appearance our building gives you can't change that," Harden

"If you look beyond the chipping of the plastered walls, the dingy and torn carpet and other minor inconveniences, you'll see and feel a beautiful warm atmosphere in Hall-Roland... We may not have the best looking and neatest dorm, but, in my opinion, we have a closeness and a spirituality that I've not seen in any other girls' dorm," said Karen Craig, a sophomore and Hall-Roland R.A.

Dr. Sewell, who lived in Paul Gray Hall, believes that "Paul Gray has a tremendous amount of heart and soul and body. The spirit is the people and the memories and the association and the environment and that's special. I can go over to Paul Gray Hall right now to second floor and my mind just starts whirling. It just starts buzzing with some memories of roommates and some tricks we played on one another,"

Another who agrees that there is something special about the atmosphere of the dorms is sophomore Ray Pack. "It is just like being at home with your real family. The guys respond well to each others needs. Everyone wants to help each other," he said." The administration," he added, "should start fixing the little things that go wrong now before they become major.".

Whatever the "outward" appearance of the dorms is many hope the "inward" appearance will always remain the Sophomore Danna Scoggins said, "I think it is a shame the way some people on this campus look down on the girls that live in Hall-Roland just because our living conditions are not as good as theirs. To me Hall-Roland has become my second home and the friends I have there are very important to me. We are like one big family."

Committee Proposes Changes

In the past few weeks, the Academic Affairs Committee has been considering changes in graduation requirements for the incoming freshman.

The changes are important because although the college has become a four year institution, the graduation requirements have remained that of a Hollingsworth, chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee. "A student could easily graduate with 99 junior college hours," said Hollingsworth. The committee has proposed 44 upper division hours be required rather than the 33 currently

Hollingsworth said that one complaint the students have is that of changing the Bible requirements to 6 upper divisions hours. Some students think that this would make them junior college according to John struggle along with the same subjects that are required for the Bible majors. Hollingsworth said this was definitely continued to page 3

Homecoming is . . .

Celeste Priode of Knoxville was crowned Homecoming Queen by President E. Claude Gardner at chapel on Saturday during Homecoming Weekend. The coronation cermeony was preceded by a chapel devotional featuring Ronnie Norman, a former student from Lakeland, FLa. In the Homecoming parade which traveled by a new route down Main Street, earlier that morning, featured floats, walking entries and automobiles. The Sophomore class float received first place. Winning first place in the walking entry division was the Student National Educational Association. In the specialty car division, Jelena Burleson and Tom Burleson won awards. Free Enterprise Business Team placed first in the specialty riding division.

The parade was led by Grand Marshall Gene Evans, and actor who has performed in over 30 movies and star of a soon-to-be-released ABC television series.

The Hootenanny provided entertainment Saturday night with

Petra, a musical group consisting of former and current F-HC students, and Lighthouse a group from Alabama Christian College. A concert Friday night in Old Chapel Hall featured the Shades a new campus musical group, the Hardeman Boys and Southern Heat, a group of F-HC students who began performing together at Morris Hill Bible School in Florence, AL. Following both of these events were campus-wide devotionals, conducted by former students John Hall on Friday night and Mike Johnson on Saturday night.

"The Fantasticks", a musical production, played Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Saturday's homecoming game against Alabama Christian College on Saturday ended in victory for F-HC. The Lady Lions lost to Lambuth Friday night.

The class of 1942, 1957, 1972 and 1982, former Pied Pipers and the Health, Physical Education and Recreation majors held reunions on Saturday.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Amy,

Thank you for the excellent coverage of the recent elections in the Bell Tower. I have appreciated the news and the analyses.

The "Election Wrap-Up" on page 2 of the November 4 issue leaves an important question unanswered. While statewide results are given in vote totals, campus results are presented only in percentages and the total number participating in the mock election is nowhere to be found. National media regularly report the number polled in surveys.

Since most of our students are not Tennesseeans, most of them may not have expressed a preference for any of the candidates. The campus Republicans are well-organized and active, and I do not question the percentages. They should not necessarily be taken, however, as representative of all students and faculty. I believe it would be a good practice to report how many voted. Sincerely,

J.D. Thomas, Vice-President Academic Affairs

Library Theft hurts Students, Pocketbooks

by Amy Elam, Editor

An average of one thousand volumes a year over a ten-year period has been taken from the Loden-Daniel Library according to Jane Miller, head librarian. The library staff is currently engaged in an inventory. With only one-third to one-half of the volumes counted, about 437 volumes were misssing according to Miller.

The last study, completed in 1980 showed that the average loss in a given year in the ten years between 1970 and 1980 was 1000 volumes a year. Since Miller states that an average book sells for $20 nationwide, the 437 volumes alone represents a cost the school over $8,000 in lost holdings. However, some books cost more than $20. "We replaced a book last year that had originally cost us $15.95. When we got the invoice, I think it was over $70," said Miller.

An interesting fact is that a breakdown of the books taken show that over 200 of the books came from the library's religious holdings. "This is not unique to Freed-Hardeman, most all libraries have a higher ratio of religious books taken. Other heavy use books in sociology, sex, social work, suicide, and Children's Literature are also frequent losses," said Mrs. Miller.

"Taking a book without checking it out properly is as serious as taking an item out of the store without paying for it. I believe it is a moral problem," said

Mille

Reference books and bound periodicals are also targets for theft and abuse. "Many of the reference books walk back in just like they walked out," said Miller She emphasized the fact that many of the bound periodicals and reference books cannot be replaced individually but that with some a whole set must be bought.

...a victory!..

"We had seven pages cut out of a computer encyclopedia just this fall," said Miller, noting that this is disturbing to her since students for years to come will be denied access to those materials. "It (cutting out pages) keeps others from using what they (the student) found so useful," said Miller.

"I hurt when magazines and newspapers are taken," said Fred Bailey, instructor in the history department. "Invariably, when I assign my Government students to read the Sunday paper, it disappears," said Bailey.

"It is a moral problem in the sense that stealing is wrong, but they may try to justify it. What hurts me is that it is senseless, insensitive, inconsiderate, and selfish. The student says, 'I need the paper,' they forget that seven to eight others my need it also," said Bailey.

How does F-HC's problem compare with other schools? "According to a study done at UTM several years ago, we're not out of line for a school with no detection system," said Miller.

According to Miller, many other schools including Christian schools have gone to book detection devices, a metal detector system that sounds an alarm and closes a gate if a book has not been properly checked out. She said that Lipscomb uses a senior citizen checker, and at Lambuth where a turnstyle system has been installed they have cut losses to less than 200 volumes per year.

"The initial installment of such a system would cost $16,000 dollars, but these things pay for themselves within three years," said Miller.

"The library represents a shared source of information and is as important to the school as a desk or dormitory. It is not our property, but belongs to all. Just as graffition the wall, taking books out of the library diminishes the whole of the community," said Bailey.

not true because there are many upper division courses that would not be as tough as those given for a Bible major.

the SGA. Included was a clause in which two tardies (10 or more minutes late) would constitute one absence. "Sometimes service means sacrifice," said Clarke. The amendment passed unanimously.

When new business was announced Al Stewart, new representative for upperclassman from Brigance Hall, was appointed to the Academic Affairs Committee. Ray Pack, underclass representative from Paul Gray Hall, was appointed to the Athletics Committee to replace Tammy Dismang, representative from New Women's Dormitory, who had resigned.

In an unusual action, Clarke asked the entire SGA to join him in the

When the group reconvened in the Conference Room Clarke commented, "Part of this is our fault. I would like to see a pledge of support from the SGA to combine with the SAA and collect donations to renovate this."

Lady Lions Come from Behind to Defeat Blue Mountain

by Kip Gunnells, Sports Editor

Led by the superlative play of Janice Wood, the Lady Lions picked up their first win of the season against Blue Mountain College from Ripley, MS. To the delight of the home crowd, Wood led the team with 17 points and pulled down 18 rebounds.

The Lions started off slowly in the first half and were dominated by the aggressive Blue Mountain Troopers. The Troopers jumped off to an early lead and cruised to an impressive 35-23 halftime lead.

It appeared the Lions would need some help from somewhere if they were to come back and win the game. The help came off the bench from Sophomore Sue Patton. Patton saw limited play in the first half only getting 4 points. She wasted no time establishing herself in the second, however, as she poured on the steam to give the Lions the boost they needed with 9 big points in the final half. Patton also played strong on the boards finishing with 9 rebounds. The final score showed the Lions on top 65-62.

Other contributing players for the team were Renee Hensley with 9 points and 7 assists. Amanda Thompson came off the bench to score 9 points. Cindy Tucker contributed 8 points while Kathy Burgett tossed in 5. Cheryl Sloan added 4 to contribute to the victory. The Lady Lions are now 1-1 in the young season after a Homecoming loss to conference rival Lambuth.

Lions Sneak by ACC in Season Opener

The Lions began their season on a positive note by defeating the Alabama Christian Eagles 67-63 last Saturday afternoon at Homecoming. This game was also Alabama Christian's first of the

The Lions were led by Garret Grills who scored 19 points and pulled down 9 rebounds. Randall Avery followed with 18 points and 10 assists, which tied a school record for assists. The others who contributed were Tony Woodall with 9 points and 7 rebounds, Art (Rooster) Green with 9 points and 3 rebounds, Satcher Dawson with 6 points, Stanley Carter with 4 points and 5 rebounds, and Mac Abston with 2

The Lions had trouble getting started. They didn't score their first basket until five minutes into the game. "Everybody was real tense, and we got off to a bad start, but as the game progressed, so did we" Grills said. One thing that got the Lions, and the fans going was the slam dunk show "Rooster" put on in the first half. One of his slams was an Alley-Oop pass from Randall Avery, which he jammed over two Alabama Christian defenders.

Most of the Lions first half scoring was well rounded, while most of ACC's came from their Junior College All-American Mike Jones with 18. Alabama Christian went to their locker room with a 33-32 halftime lead.

The second half was a different story. Alabama Christian began with their stall game. At first it worked, because with just a little more than 13 minutes to play they had a 46-36 lead. However, behind the play of Garret Grills and Randall Avery the Lions came back to tie the game at 50 with 7:30 left to play. Tony Woodall scored a three-point play to give the Lions a 53-50 lead with 6 minutes to play. Alabama Christian fought back and regained a 60-59 lead with just 2 minutes left on the clock. Satcher Dawson hit two key free throws with 57 seconds left to give the Lions the lead for the rest of the game.

When asked how he felt about the win Coach Smith said, "We'll take it, but I'm not sure we were the better team today." He added, "If we're going to be a good ball club we're going to have to do things more fundamental."

Garret Grills said, "I feel good about the win," Grills said, "We just had to get things started." When asked about his play in the second half Grills said,"I feel good about my second half play." I just started doing the things I knew I could do all the game."

Randall Avery really didn't want to comment on the game, but he did say, "We won, but that's all we did, we really didn't play that well."

The Lions will now travel to Montgomery today to play the Eagles again on their home court.
