Milsap to Perform on Campus

by Christie Chaney

On April 23, 1984, at 7:00 p.m., Freed-Hardeman College and WKIR-104 will present a concert featuring the new group Henderson Station and internationally-known singer Ronnie Milsap. Ticket sales for this sure-to-be outstanding program began Wednesday, February 8. What inspired a small Christian college in west Tennessee to host a concert of such caliber? Dean Jim Selbe, while driving home from school, heard the number one song on the American country charts—"Show Her." Very impressed, he bought the record and after further listening contacted Winston Harless about the possibility of using it in April's Makin' Music program. When Mr. Harless informed him that the songs to be used had already been selected, Dean Selbe had the idea to "get Ronnie to come and do it himself!" Although Milsap's fees were high, President Gardner is in favor of the concert—if the college can make it work. After meeting with class presidents, Dean Selbe decided to give it a shot. Then, when the promo tape was played in chapel last week, the favorable response guaranteed an official date.

Freed-Hardeman College now hopes, and expects, to sell the 2,900 available tickets in order to remain financially secure in the venture. According to Dean Selbe, it is "up to the students" to guarantee the success of this project. He feels that this can be one of the greatest events to ever occur at F-HC, something that the students deserve and can remember if they will spark interest and promote ticket sales. Slight skepticism may be coming from remembrance of the Anne Murray concert in 1972 which simply "flopped." "If we get support, it will be fine," Selbe states, "but I don't want it to be 1996 before we can attempt another concert."

Ticket sales began Wednesday, February 8 and Thursday, February 9, at 8:30 in the Student Affairs Office. Students had first choice on Wednesday and sales were open to all on Thursday. Sales will continue until all tickets are sold.

Kay Renfroe

McWhorter and Renfroe Elected Mr. and Miss F-HC

by Kay Owen

Greg McWhorter and Kay Renfroe have been chosen Mr. and Miss F-HC for 1983-84. The student body voted in the Student Government Association sponsored election in January.

Renfroe is a management major from Gurley, Alabama. While at Freed-Hardeman she has been involved in many activities including: President of the junior and senior class, a three year member of the Student Alumni Association, a member of the Free Enterprise Business Team, Director of Tri Zeta's Makin' Music for the past two years, an Interface leader, a residence assistant, and 1984 Makin' Music Coordinator.

Some of the most meaningful things Renfroe feels she has gained while at F-HC are many wonderful friends and the experience gained through the opportunities which are available at Freed-Hardeman. Renfroe says she strives to be friendly and to get to know people on an individual basis.

"I do not want to limit myself," Renfroe intently says concerning her future. Her immediate goal after graduation is to receive her masters degree.

McWhorter is a Bible and general studies major from Fayette, Alabama. During his four years at Freed-Hardeman he has served as the first president of the Tri Zeta social club, Student Government Association member and 1983-84 president, Mission Interface leader, Impact participant, member of the Student Alumni Association, a member of the Preachers' Club, and has worked as an admissions assistant for the past two years.

While at F-HC McWhorter has learned the meaning of true, deep down friendship and found the importance of seeking out oneself and deciding what one is personally going to contribute to the world.

Editorial Opinion

"Let's Do It!"

by Bobby McVey

Three different campus groups are sticking their necks out to make life more exciting for present and future students at Freed-Hardeman. To make the events that they are planning a success they need the support of anyone who is connected with the college in any way.

The junior class is doing something no other junior class has ever done. They are holding this year's Junior-Senior Banquet at the classy Peabody Hotel in Memphis. Gwen Williams, president of the class, says that tickets will be expensive, "but once you see this place, you are going to realize that it is worth every penny." All juniors and seniors are invited along with any date they wish to bring. Cost will be $20 for everyone except seniors.

Jim Selbe and the Office of Student Affairs will bring us something that students have been requesting for years. Ronnie Milsap will perform in Loyd Auditorium April 23. The last big name performer seen on this campus was Anne Murray in 1973 and a lot of money was lost on that concert. A lot of money could be lost on this one if the auditorium does not have a capacity crowd. If that happens, it may be ten more years before we have another big name performer.

The Student Government Association is proposing a plan for the renovation of the student center. The cost of this renovation has been estimated at $80,000 dollars, which, according to the proposal, will be raised by the student body over the next few years. The plans include a sunken floor, a fireplace, and three levels that will give an arena effect, conducive to devotionals. But if this plan is approved, it will take the efforts of the entire student body to make it work.

Rocky made the phrase "Go for it!" famous and it has been used many times. Maybe this year's phrase could be "Let's do it!"

Tribute to Paul Gray

To the Editor:

Lisa Mueller, a poet, once wrote, "I recognize myself, but not by sight." This thought represents the spirit of Paul Gray Hall. If work continues on schedule, Paul Gray Hall should reopen with a new look and efficient quality. Yet, I doubt the spirit, which I so easily recognize and love, will be lost regardless of the new look of the building. Let me talk about spirit.

The spirit is in the people. Paul Gray has housed many types of spirited people. When I first came to campus, I was a shocked freshman. I was in a little town that curled up at five p.m. There was a curfew! Shorter hair! No beards! Rules everywhere! I was determined not to make it. The one factor that would tip my balance was Paul Gray Hall. It had its reputations and an assortment of unfavorable names. As most reputations exist, these had no substance.

All my nightmares had potential. I made friends and soon learned many of these guys cared and went out of their way to do so. I broke much of my cross cultural prejudices. I learned to drop much of the macho hype and to love people. A dormitory is a classroom. I've learned much in Paul Gray Hall. Its spirit equates well with Christianity. Four years later, it is empty. When it reopens, I am confident the real identifier will be there: the spirit, the people. "For years I have been asleep, but now I am awake to this life."

Looking back with love,

Our Deteriorating Situation

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of political satires submitted by Roy Neal Grissom, a freshman organizational communication major from Henderson.

It has happened.

What was before carried on in secret has now resurfaced openly and brazenly, transforming our formerly peaceful campus and community into a textbook of chaos and civil disorder.

Several incidents of vandalism and violence at Henderson's innumerable Flemish restaurants have increased the workload of the Henderson Police Department to a previously unknown level.

The hunger strike in Gano Dining Hall continues, entering its second week. Any attempts to make the participants see reason is answered with, "How can we eat this food while in their own homeland. Our People are being denied basic human rights?" This distinguishes them from the rest of the student body, who ask simply, "How can we eat this food?"

The negotiations for releasing the hostages being held in the bell tower (consisting of a tourist from New York on his way to the Gulf Coast, a projection equipment salesman, a couple of domino players from the courthouse, and several of the more prominent stray dogs in town) have dragged on altogether too long. "Not until the King of Belgium abdicates or grants self-determination for our Ancestral Homeland!" they vow.

Surely the angels weep!

Of course, this is not merely a local problem. Nationally and throughout the world Walloons are becoming radicalized as they call for an end to Flemish domination. Their cause has also attracted support from certain segments of the entertainment community. Depraved rock superstar Fats Domino has expressed sympathy for the movement, declaring that he will donate the gate receipts from his most recent concert to the Fund for Universal Human Dignity (a front group). But then, this was to be expected of the man who single-handedly destroyed the moral fiber of American youth.

I signed up for the Walloon history class, which was one of the demands of the Walloon Students' Association. I attended the first session this week. Dull city.

"From the beginning our people were a revolutionary people," our instructor said. "Throughout history our great nationalist leaders have foreshadowed the coming of Marxism and the liberation of humanity."

Honestly, if it weren't for the fact that Walloon history will look so good on my job resume, I'd drop it and switch to computer programming.

Milsap . . .

Gold section seats are $15.00, and all others, including the balcony, are $10.00. Checks should be made payable to Freed-Hardeman College. A section of the main floor seats will be reserved for off-campus fans for their support of the college. Tickets sales are being promoted here at the college, by WKIR in Jackson, to alumni and prospective students of F-HC, to churches and youth groups, and to the general Jackson-Henderson market, so those interested are encouraged to buy their tickets as soon as possible.

What will the concert consist of? Henderson Station, a group made up of last year's Hardeman Boys and Mark Crawford, Pam Delk, Charlie Lauderdale, and Julie Smith, will perform for 30 to 45 minutes. Ronnie Milsap, equipped with his own sound system and light show, will sing for approximately 75 minutes. He will be accompanied by three female vocalists and about five band members. His crossover country-pop style should appeal to all.

This concert is merely a service to the students and supporters of Freed-Hardeman College, an answer to their queries about why they can't have "big-name" entertainers like David Lipscomb College and Harding University have regularly. Freed-Hardeman will make only a minute profit and only if every seat is filled. To avoid losing money, all those involved with the college are encouraged to get busy and give as much support as they can. In the words of the man behind this idea, Dean Jim Selbe, "This is an expensive investment. The amount of good it will do in terms of student morale and recruitment cannot be measured in dollars and cents, but it's going to mean that the Freed-Hardeman family is going to have to make it work."

Maintenance Contract Set Up

by Kent Carter

Columbus Services, Inc. has taken over the maintenance and custodial services at F-HC under a new maintenance contract. Columbus Services is a subsidiary of Servisco Corporation which has been serving colleges and universities for more than 25 years.

"We expect this to provide additional services for the faculty and students through the professional background this company has," said President Gardner. "Maintenance and custodial services will be improved and economized through the preventive maintenance this company can provide." He added that "a contract already exists with food services, vending and security."

Joseph E. Martin, Regional Director of Engineering for the service, said that this service will be most beneficial in "better organization and utilization of the maintenance and custodial staff and also in the area of preventive maintenance." According to Martin, an inventory will be made and information on each piece of equipment will be fed into a computer. Every month there will be maintenance forms for work to be done in maintaining each piece of equipment. He expects equipment life to be much longer with continual maintenance. This will provide a greater savings to the college." He also said that "the level of custodial work I've seen here done by the students is outstanding. I've never seen better."

Bruce Frantz is the temporary project manager. A full-time manager will begin working with the college in the near future.

S-AA Sponsors Valentine Party

by Sherra Williams

"Straight From the Heart" is the theme of the annual Valentine party which will take place Friday, February 10, in Pruett Banquet Hall. The activities will begin at 7:30 p.m. and continue throughout the evening, ending with a campus-wide devotional in the banquet hall at 10:00 p.m.

All students and faculty members are invited to join in the fun and encouraged to dress in their best "Valentine attire." Activities planned for the evening include a concert by Phoenix Flight Three, the presentation of Valentine couples, a devotional, and refreshments . . . all surrounded by Valentine decorations. Couples can also have pictures made for $6.00.

The highlight of the evening will be the announcement of this year's student and faculty Valentine couples. After F-HC students nominated couples last week, the top six student couples and the top three faculty couples were then chosen. Each of these couples will be presented in conjunction with a slide show after which the winners will be announced.

The six student couples are: Gina Brewer, Henderson, TN, and Scott Nelson, Doniphan, MO; Beth King, Columbia, TN, and Lincoln Coggin, Leland, MS; Willie Henderson, LaGrange, GA, and Paul Reeves, Murfreesboro, TN; Michele Maness, Henderson, TN, and Chris Barber, Palmersville, TN; Vicki Mannon, Floyd, VA, and Kevin Owen, Goreville, IL; and Ashley Moore, Hamilton, AL, and Seth Chandler, Hohenwald, TN.

The three faculty couples are Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hibbett, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sharp.

The Student Alumni Association is pleased to sponsor this event and hopes everyone will come and enjoy the activities they have planned.

Imagery Comes to Life in Thacker's Art Work

by Pamela Jo Delk

"So I prophesied as I was commanded; and as I prophesied, there was a noise, and behold, a rattling; and the bones came together, bone to bone." (Ezek. 37:7)

Terry Thacker uses this passage as an example of what verbal imagery may evoke in one's mind—causing inactive things to become active. In Thacker's own works, he places symbols and images in a personal and expressionistic way, distorting our perspective.

His work is influenced by the imagery encountered in medieval art, Southwest

Indian art, and huicol yarn painting—visual imagery that incorporates myths, parables, and narration.

"Cross-cultural myths fascinate me," said Thacker. "Recrudescence visual images of water, fire, and whirlwinds signify birth and rebirth, purification, and substance and energy" for the artisan.

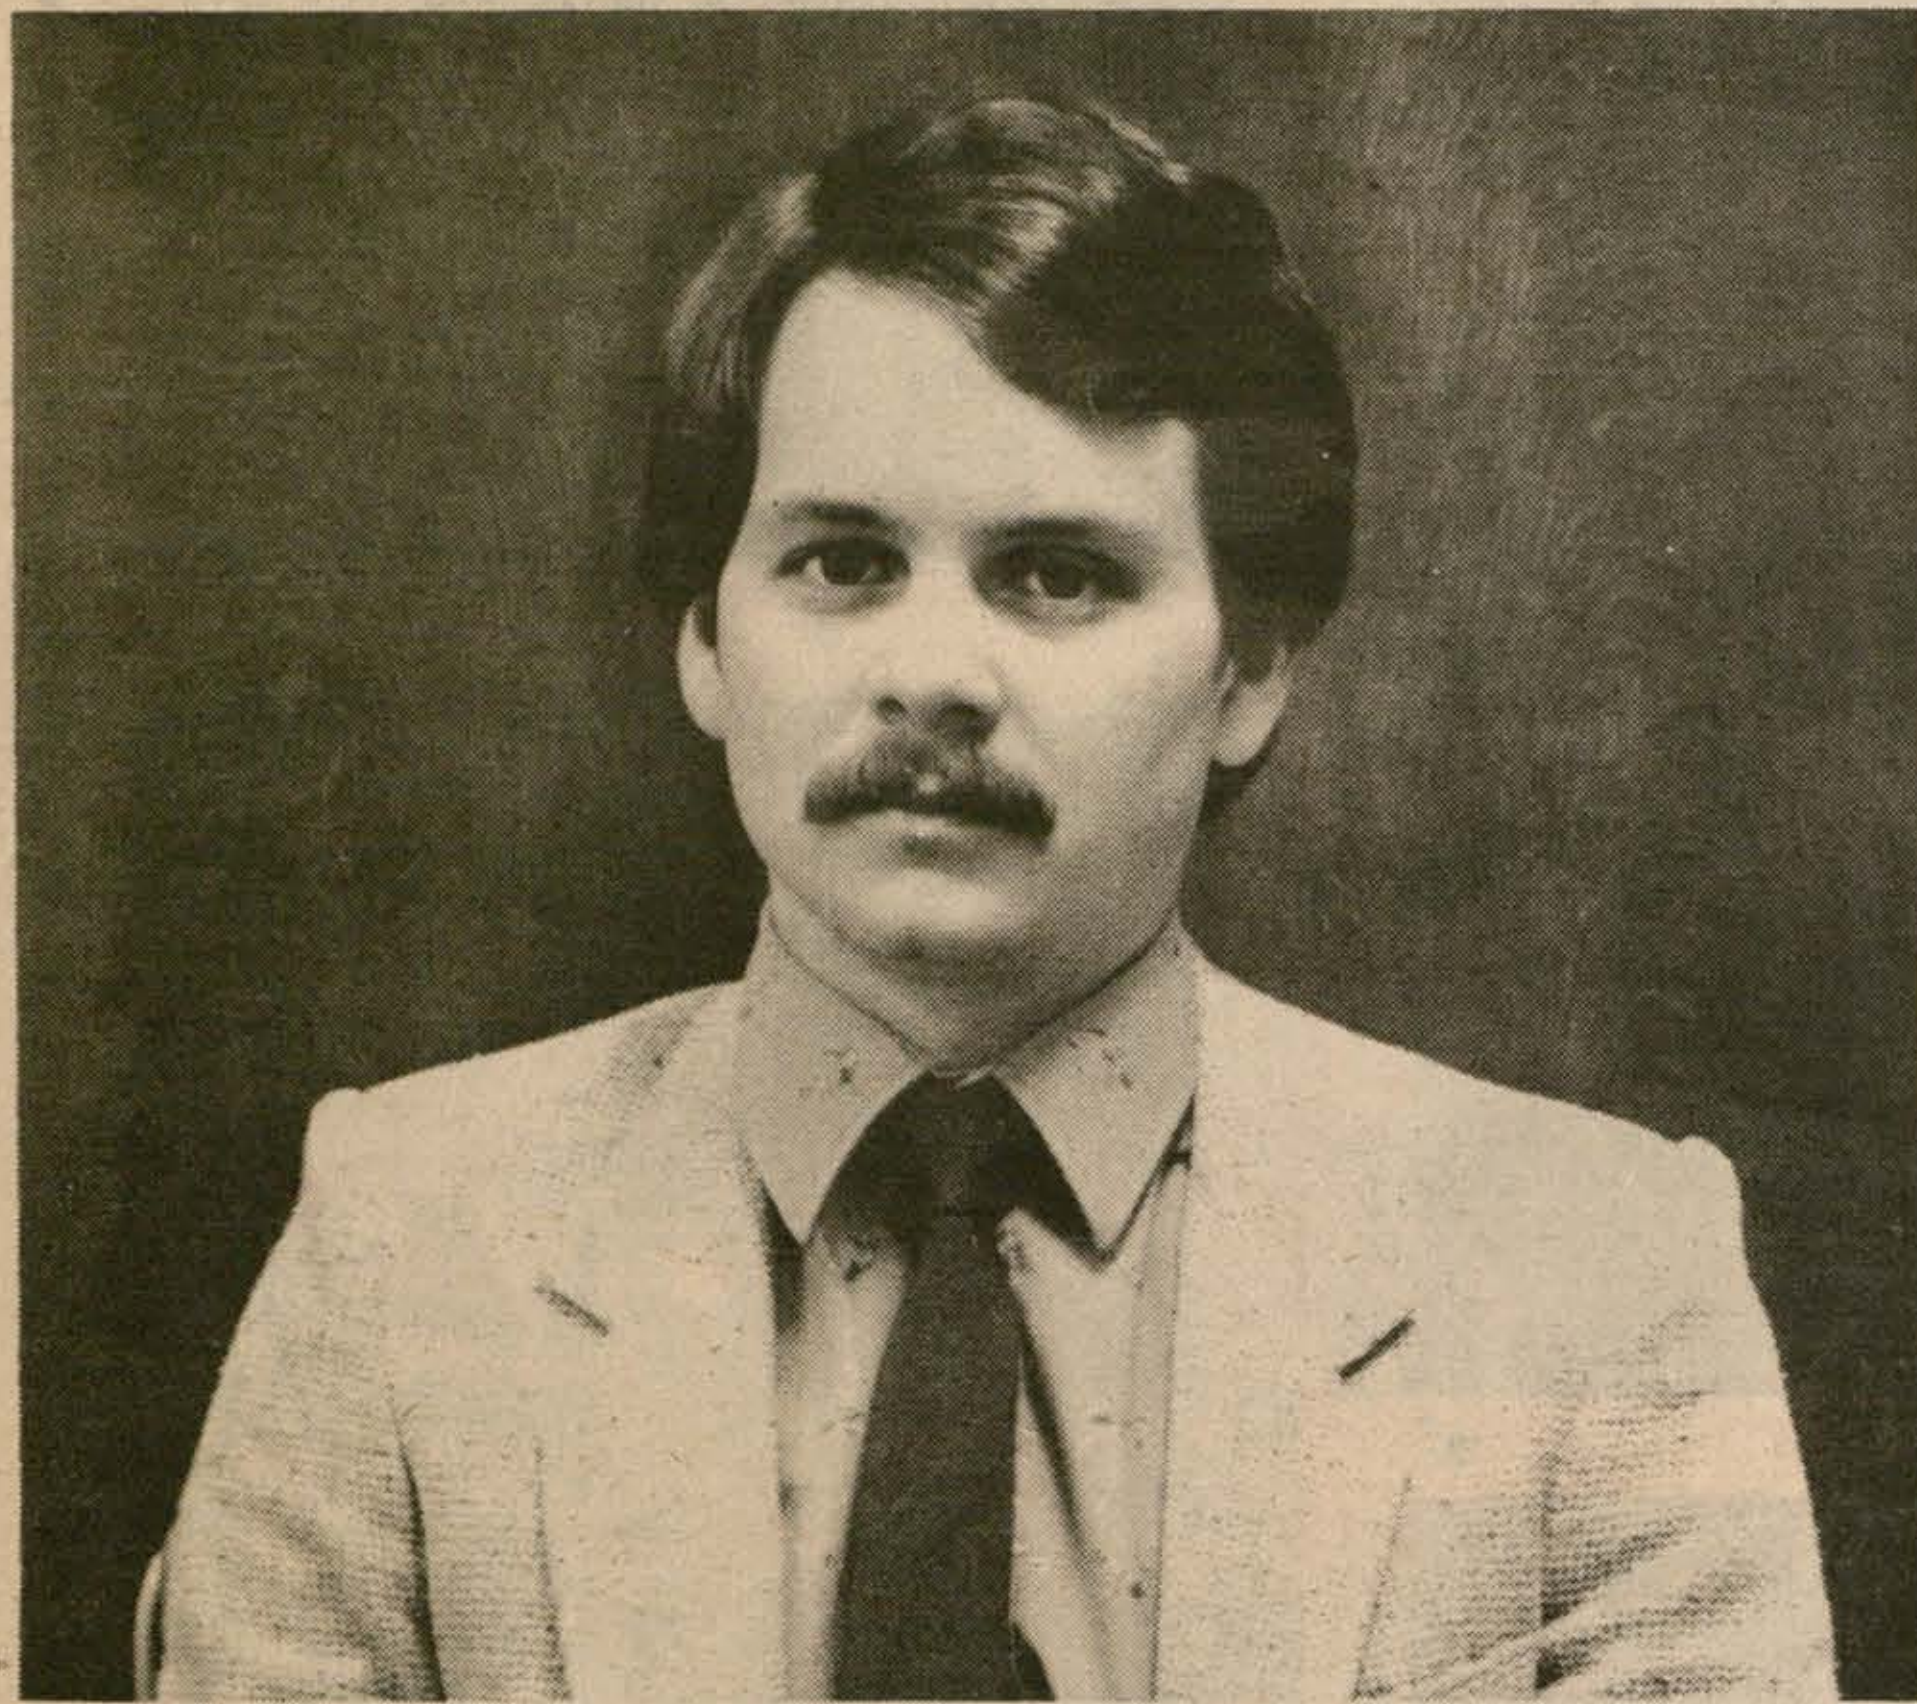

In clarifying a myth for himself, he places these more obscure and veiled symbols with everyday, domestic images that are more personal to him—mortar and pestle (his father is a pharmacist), lectern, an Ionic capitol, and a bird's nest.

To Terry Thacker, painting is like prayer, like a dialogue between the physical and metaphysical world. His approach to his mediums—oil and charcoal—is direct, sensuous, and physical in nature; yet his use of hybrid imagery points us to a metaphysical conclusion.

Thacker teaches studio art classes at Freed-Hardeman. He is a 1977 graduate of Austin Peay State University and received his masters degree in fine arts from the University of Tennessee in 1980. Thacker's work will be on display at Freed-Hardeman's gallery February 6 til March 2. According to him, all the entries in the exhibition have been executed within the last six months.

His earlier efforts contain photorealistic images that reflect the influence of Wayne Theibaud, an American artist. The Vanderbilt department of fine arts purchased one of these photorealistic paintings, A Pair of Workgloves, for their permanent collection in 1977. Certainly, his exhibition is one not to be missed.

Terry Thacker

by my peers, but by Christian peers and this virtue of Christianity makes them top quality," says McWhorter. He also feels that Mr. and Miss F-HC have the responsibility of living up to the image that the title bears.

When McWhorter completes his education at Freed-Hardeman he plans to enter law school. He wants to become a minister and a politician. He says, "I see a great need for the Christian to be heard and felt in our nation through the government." This is the reason for his unique combination of career goals.

Renfro and McWhorter are both people who want to live their lives in a way that will make a difference in this world. This honor shows that they have made a difference on the campus of Freed-Hardeman College.

The nominees for Miss F-HC included: Lynne Hibbett, JoLynn Jacobs, LeAnn Lawhon, Ashley Moore, and JoEllen Perry. The nominees for Mr. F-HC were: Anthony Brown, Seth Chandler, Kevin Owen, Jack Parham, Mark Sisco and Daryl Wiley. Mr. and Miss F-HC and the nominees will be further honored at a banquet which is planned for a later date.

Upset of Union Highlights Season for Lady Lions

Cheryl Sloan lays in two of her fifteen points in the Lady Lions' 84-77 upset win over the Union Lady Bulldogs. The victory avenged a 33-point loss to the Lady Bulldogs the previous week.

by Bobby McVey

If ever one win could make a season for a team with a losing record, the Lady Lion's victory over the Lady Bulldogs of Union would be that win. It was not just because the Bulldogs had defeated nationally-ranked David Lipscomb only two nights before, or that they were leading the VSAC-West at the time, or that they had defeated F-HC by 33 points in a game that was never a game on the previous Saturday, but a combination of all three.

The Lady Lions led in all but one category. They hit 55% of their shots to only 49% for the Lady Bulldogs. F-HC hit on 79% of its free-throws on 26 of 33, compared to the visitors 70%, or 19 of 27. The Lady Lions blocked four Union shots and had none of their own blocked. The only statistic they lost at was in the rebound department, where Union picked up five more than the Lady Lions, which is better than the average in which the opposition has been outrebounding F-HC by about 10 a game.

Amanda Thompson was the individual key to this win as she started her first game this semester. She responded with 30 points on 10 of 16 field goals and 10 of 12 free-throws to spark a team which had been floundering up until that game.

Three other team-members scored in double figures as Cheryl Sloan chipped in 15, Renee Hensley scored 14, and Janice Wood hit for 10 and also grabbed a team-leading nine rebounds.

Rust 77, F-HC 70

Janice Wood broke out of a scoring slump to score 28 points on 12 of 16 field goals and 4 of 6 free throws. But it wasn't enough, as the Ladies led in every category but one, turnovers, in which they committed 6 more than their opponents. Wood also pulled down a game high 11 rebounds.

CBC 78, F-HC 70

The Lady Lions led this one by three at the half, but couldn't hold it as the Lady Bucs scored 13 straight points midway through the second period to take a commanding 12 point lead. F-HC cut it to six on three-point plays by Renee Hensley and Janice Wood but could get no closer.

Hensley scored a game-high 25 points and Wood chipped in 14 to lead the Lady Lion scorers. Hensley also dished out a season high 12 assists.

UNA 77, F-HC 64

The Lady Lions never got off the ground in this one as they had numerous scoring opportunities slip away in the first half.

Janice Wood again led the team with 11 points and nine rebounds. Tessa McAfee and Lesley Eakins each scored 10 points.

Lions Hit Hard Times After Loss of Players

by Bob Jones

After a very promising start the Freed-Hardeman Lions basketball team has fallen upon hard times, and the hope that burned bright at the beginning of the season has been dimmed considerably.

Twenty games into the season the Lions had forged a solid 12-8 record, including 4-3 in the VSAC West, and had shown signs of having the potential to do very well in the VSAC tournament. But since then they have dropped three of their last four games by an average of twenty points as their record has sunk to 13-11 overall and 5-5 in the VSAC. The lone bright spot was a two-point victory over the Union Bulldogs which was won on a Ray Robinson jumper from the top of the key that just beat the buzzer.

The major causes of the Lions' downfall were the dismissal of Randy Bates, Jeff Edwards, and Jeff Schoen from the team for various disciplinary reasons, and a back injury that has kept star player Garrett Grills out of the lineup indefinitely.

The losses of Schoen and Grills especially hurt. Schoen, a 6'9" transfer from Indiana-Southwest, had just become eligible during the Christmas break and was providing strong rebounding and defense in the middle for the Lions. Grills was averaging 20 points and nine rebounds before being injured in practice before the Union game, bringing his streak of 106 consecutive games played to an end.

In addition to losing the scoring, rebounding, and defense of these players the Lions are now suffering from a severe lack of depth, especially in the frontcourt. The starting frontline of Robinson, Nate Samuel, and Kevin Theus has nobody over 6'4" and Tim Alexander is the only relief on the bench. Needless to say, it's hard to win consistently with no true center, especially when half of your players are point guards.

If Grills recuperates and is able to return to his old form then the Lions may be able to salvage their season. If not, it looks like Freed-Hardeman basketball fans will be saying "Wait until next year," once again.

The most recent District 24 statistics showed seniors Randall Avery and Grills among the leaders in a number of categories. Avery is third in scoring with 21.6 points per game while Grills is fifth with an average of 20.3. Grills ranks third in field goal percentage with a mark of 60.5% and Avery is seventh at 56.4%. Grills was also third in the district with an average of nine rebounds per game. Avery was leading the district in free throw percentage, connecting on 90% of his shots from the charity stripe. That mark also ranked fifth nationally in the NAIA. As a team the Lions were shooting 54% from the floor to rank 14th in the nation.

The Lions were to play the University of Arkansas-Pine Bluff at 5 p.m. today with their next game scheduled for Saturday night at 8 o'clock against Bethel in Bader Gymnasium.

Kevin Theus goes up for two points despite being surrounded by Union Bulldogs. Theus ended up with eight points as the Lions went on to defeat the Bulldogs, 58-56. David Fields Photo

Intramural Roundup

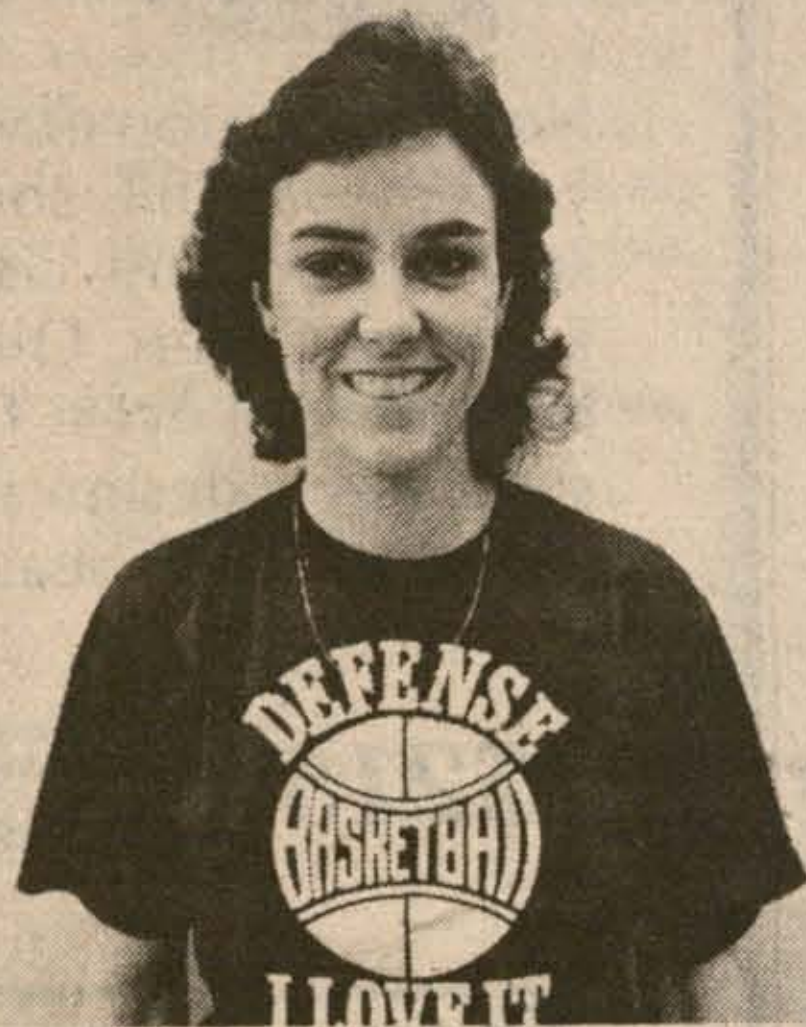

by Danny Sorrell

Intramural competition for the spring semester is off and running with a variety of sports. On Saturday, January 28, four clubs entered teams in the new towel polo tournament. In the men's tournament Alpha Tau came out on top. In the women's tournament Tri-Zeta took first place honors.

An intramural activity of the past that has been revived this spring is the free-throw competition. The field has been narrowed down to two finalists in both the men's and women's competition. Chris Barber of Zeta and Lincoln Coggin of Sigma Rho are the men's finalists. Jill White and Andrea Brooks, both of Tri-Zeta, are the women's finalists.

Always a popular spring sport, 5-on-5 basketball is once again providing excitement and fun for both the students and the faculty. In the women's league, PKA #1 has started fast behind Vicky Pearson, Sherrie Hollie and Vicky Christian. Sigma Rho is also undefeated. In the under-six-foot league, Alpha Tau is off to a quick start led by Steve Bates and Reggie Surratt. PKA #1 is only one game back of Alpha Tau with Anthony Brown leading that team. In the open division, Alpha Tau #1 has been devastating, outscoring their opponents by more than 60 points each game. Sigma Rho has also looked impressive so far behind the play of Kent Scott. The faculty team is also undefeated thanks to the play of Tom Dixon who is averaging more than 30 points per game. Basketball will continue throughout the month of February.

Amanda Thompson was selected as the Perrigo's Player of the Week during the week of January 22-28 for her outstanding play in the Lady Lions' upset victory over the VSAC leading Lady Bulldogs of Union University. Thompson burned the nets for a total of 30 points in her best performance ever for the Lady Lions. She connected on 10 out of 16 shots from the field and 10 out of 12 from the free throw line in the 84-77 win.

PERRIGO'S PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Each winner will receive a pizza dinner for two at Perrigo's Pizza during the week they are chosen.

The Perrigo's Player of the Week for January 29-February 4 was senior guard Randall Avery.
