Edwin Newman to speak at Benefit Dinner

Edwin Newman

by Gilbert Stevenson
staff reporter

On December 2, Freed-Hardeman College will host its twenty-fourth annual Advisory Board Benefit Dinner to raise funds for the college's operational needs.

This year the featured speaker will be former NBC anchorman and commentator Edwin Newman. Among Newman's vast experience as a newsmen are 35 years of affiliation with NBC. He has written several articles for American, British, and Canadian publications such as "Reader's Digest," "TV Guide," "Harpers," "Esquire," and others. He has written two books on the state of the English language, "Strictly Speaking" and "A Civil Tongue." Newman has been described as the only host of "Saturday Night Live" to moderate a presidential debate.

His speech topic is "A Look at the News." Newman will be drawing from his own news experience to explain how news gets from the event to the network.

Dinner will be served from 4:30 p.m. until 7 p.m. in the Pruett Banquet Hall. Newman will be speaking in Loyd Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

The annual dinner is F-HC's largest fund raiser each year. All proceeds will go toward the operational needs of the school. The tickets for the dinner are $60 per person or $120 per couple.

OPINION

Challenge your mind: Read a good book

by Shane Luttrell
staff reporter

Okay, here's the scenario: You're a typical F-HC student. You are in your dorm room; it's a lazy Saturday afternoon, and everyone has gone home but you. You have no gas and/or no car. You're bored silly. You have no homework due on Monday, and (here's the important part) sitting in front of your glazed eyeballs is a television, a book, and a radio.

Presented with these three diversions, how likely is it that you'll go for the book instead of the radio or T.V.? If you do decide to read, what kind of book will you choose?

Fifty F-HC students provided some answers on this subject over the past week. Half of those polled said they would turn on the radio. Twenty-six percent would grab the book, and 24 percent would flip on the T.V. While the choice of the radio was the overwhelming surprise of the day, it was even more surprising that more students would read than watch television. Is it possible that the surpassing idiocy of "Gilligan's Island" is wearing a bit thin? Maybe. A more likely explanation is that on campus it costs $40 to pick up Gilligan. Even so, that so many would even consider reading something just for fun is pretty amazing.

Assuming you're in the 26 percent that would rather read than watch T.V., what would you be reading? The answers of the 50 students polled ranged from "Ziggy" to "Lord of the Flies." When asked to name a favorite non-inspired book, students most often responded with Margaret Mitchell's "Gone with the Wind," and the works of J. R. R. Tolkien. Also popular were Louis Lamour's westerns, "It," by Stephen King, and Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn." The most bewildering answers were the "Service Merchandise Catalogue" and "The Sound Engineer's Handbook." The scariest answer by far was "Mein Kampf."

Even if we read the novelization of "Friday the 13th, Part VIII," at least we're reading, right? Yes, but not all reading is beneficial, according to Dr. Don Schull, a member of the English Department faculty at F-HC. Even seemingly innocent material may not be giving an accurate picture of reality. Schull said that reading that is an "ego trip" is harmful. Books that fall into this category are ones with a protagonist around whom the whole world centers; characters who, as Schull put it, "Get the girl, get revenge, get everything." When we start identifying with characters like that, we might think ourselves badly treated when the world doesn't patronize our every whim. Pulp like Matt Helm and Doc Savage were examples in the '50s. Today some pulp serials still exist, along with a variety of books with the same bend, including Harlequin Romances.

Schull said, "I have enough democracy in me not to condemn Harlequin Romances. But what I find objectionable is that the men in them are like Vincent on 'Beauty and the Beast.' They act masculine, but they are dream men who place no demands on the women they love. They're objects."

He admits that a little daydreaming along these lines isn't harmful but is afraid that too much may give us a slanted view of the world.

Even so, it is good that students do read. A good book can challenge your thinking ten times more than, say, "Wheel of Fortune." All three of the mediums mentioned have advantages and disadvantages.

That's not a bad way to spend a lazy Saturday afternoon.

Everyone has many responsibilities in this rushed, fast-paced life that we live in the '80s; we have responsibilities to our churches, to our jobs, to our families, and to ourselves. Juggling these can sometimes be nerve-racking and ulcer-producing, but we manage.

I think the key to handling responsibilities in this hurried world is priorities. Deciding what is the most important thing to accomplish should govern what we do first, second, and so forth. But do we really think of responsibilities in this light?

Yes and no. God and the church should always come first no matter what, but sometimes, hard as we may try, they do not. We can let that test or that paper take precedence over attending church services. Job responsibility or work that we are being paid to do should be a priority in our lives, but sometimes we lose sight of what needs to be done, and we opt to do what is more fun or glamorous. We decide that going with our friends to the mall is more fun than showing up for our work study job. Family should be a priority in our lives, but sometimes we let other things take over like school or extracurricular activities.

My point is this: priorities are difficult for everyone. They are constantly changing, sometimes from hour to hour. They are never static. Accept the challenge to set priorities and stick to them.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., once said, "I believe that every right implies a responsibility; every opportunity, an obligation; every possession, a duty." Think about it.

The Backroom offers a variety of music

by Carl Bell
music critic

U2, INXS, R.E.M., and the Talking Heads are all familiar groups, right? How about Transvision Vamp, Modern Allies, or Big Audio Dynamite? If you are like most, you have very little exposure to these artists, and if that is the case, then you need to tune in to 91.5's special Sunday program called the Backroom. The show, hosted by Randy Burse, lasts from 10 until 12 p.m. every Sunday night and offers a wide variety of "underground" college radio music.

We live a musically sheltered life in this area. It seems that all area stations have gone to some form of Top-40 pop format. Even one of the last surviving album-oriented rock stations, Rock 98 from Memphis, recently sold out by changing its format, graciously changing its call letters, and can now be heard playing Rick Astley and Debbie Gibson--the same artists they used to slam and ridicule. It is nice to know that 91.5 is at least making an attempt to offer a variety of music with programs like the Backroom.

So, if you have been looking for a break from the same old songs you hear on the radio day in and day out, then Burse and the Backroom are for you.

Don't miss this weekend's Halloween Feature...

Love and honesty triumph in Homecoming production

by Stuart Hames
staff reporter

On November 3, 1988, the curtain will go up on Freed-Hardeman College's annual Homecoming production. This year's audience will be treated to Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance," directed by Dr. Winston Harless, assistant professor of communications.

The action of the musical centers around Frederic, an orphan apprenticed to the pirates. Frederic has fallen in love with Mabel, one of the daughters of the major general. An interesting paradox develops centering on the fact that Frederic is due to be freed from his apprenticeship at the age of twenty-one. However, since he was born on February 29, leap year, he still has 62 years to serve the pirates. A "slave of duty," Frederic warns his masters of the trap the police have set, and the police themselves are caught in it. In the end, love and honesty triumph.

Harless said he is very excited about this year's production. With a somewhat tight budget, Harless said that "Pirates" was a particularly good piece to do because there are no royalties involved. He also said that it was a good challenge for everyone since it is one of the three most popular Gilbert and Sullivan musicals.

With a cast of over 40 students plus the crew and orchestra, Harless said he is very happy to see so many new faces. He said he is especially impressed with the fact that there are so many people from different social clubs working together. He is also pleased that the music and theatre departments are working together on this effort.

"This is the first year in five or six years that the music department has been involved with the Homecoming production and we are hoping to re-establish that relationship," Harless said.

Randy Burse, a sophomore communications major from Henderson, plays the part of Samuel, the first mate of the Pirate King. Burse said he is very excited about having a part and that he believes it will be a good experience for him and many others to be involved in a musical.

"It takes 200 percent on everybody's part," Burse said. "I mistakenly thought it would be just a long Makin' Music show, but there is so much more to it than I realized."

Many may not realize how much time actually goes into a top performance. According to Harless, practices usually begin every night around 7 and do not end until around 11. The performers also practice on weekends. Burse added that the actors have many hours of work outside practice as well.

"Hard work is essential," he said. Harless said the set for the play is not very elaborate.

"It's a fun setting, appropriate for a smaller stage like ours. In Gilbert and Sullivan's works, music is emphasized more so than set."

"Pirates of Penzance" opens Thursday, November 3, with remaining performances scheduled for November 4, 5, 11 and 12. Harless hopes that everyone will come and see the production because he thinks they will really enjoy it.

As one cast member said, "It's going to be very exciting. . . colorful costumes, choreography, and exciting music. Come see it and enjoy yourselves!"

Homecoming '88: This is a family affair

by Paul Powers
staff reporter

Freed-Hardeman College has a way of becoming home to those who live on its campus. To some it means more than shelter - it means family. The theme of this year's homecoming is, "This is a family affair." Beginning Friday, November 11, students and alumni will celebrate with their families in Homecoming '88.

J. Walker Whittle, director of alumni relations, said that activities of the weekend are designed so the alumni can come home to the F-HC family. A nursery will be set up for the smaller children from 6 a.m. until 10 p.m., and from 10 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 until 4 p.m. on Saturday. Whittle said the children will be entertained and their parents will be able to enjoy the weekend.

...students and alumni will celebrate with their families in Homecoming '88

The activities begin in chapel at 10:30 Friday morning with the crowning of the Homecoming queen, and at 6 p.m. the Lady Lions take on Tennessee Weleyn College. The homecoming production, The Pirates of Penzance, a concert of the original Hardeman Boys, and class reunions begin at 7:30 p.m. The night ends with an 11:00 devotional in the Commons.

Saturday morning begins with a performance by the Pied Pipers at 9:00. During the morning chapel, awards will be given to the Alumnus of the Year and Young Alumnus of the Year. The Director's Award will also be presented. Showcase starts at 1:30 featuring the Sonshine Singers and the Chorus, and the Lions take on Lindsey-Wilson College at 2:30 p.m.

Departmental reunions will be held at 4:30 Saturday evening, and PKA's Hootenanny presents the Belmont Reasons at 7:30. If you didn't get a chance to see Pirates of Penzance on Friday, it will also be presented at 7:30. The devotional Saturday is at 11 p.m.

Even if you're up to your eyebrows in homework, you needn't carry the world on your shoulders.

Not with a Macintosh® computer on your desk.

Think of an assignment that weighs heavily on your mind right now—say, a term paper. With Macintosh, you can bring instant order to the jumble of notes, scribbles, quotes, and excerpts that'll go into your paper. You can quickly draft an outline, change the order of topics, and jot down related ideas at will.

Then you start to write. You don't like the way you phrased a paragraph? No problem—try something new, without erasing or retyping a word. Want to move the second page of your first draft to the tail end of your last draft? It only takes a few seconds.

With Macintosh, you can also have your paper proofread in a minute or two. And you can illustrate it with professional-looking drawings and graphs, even if you don't know a T-square from a T-bird.

And here's the clincher: You can learn to do all of these things—all of them—in less time than you might spend studying for a Monday morning quiz. Starting Sunday.

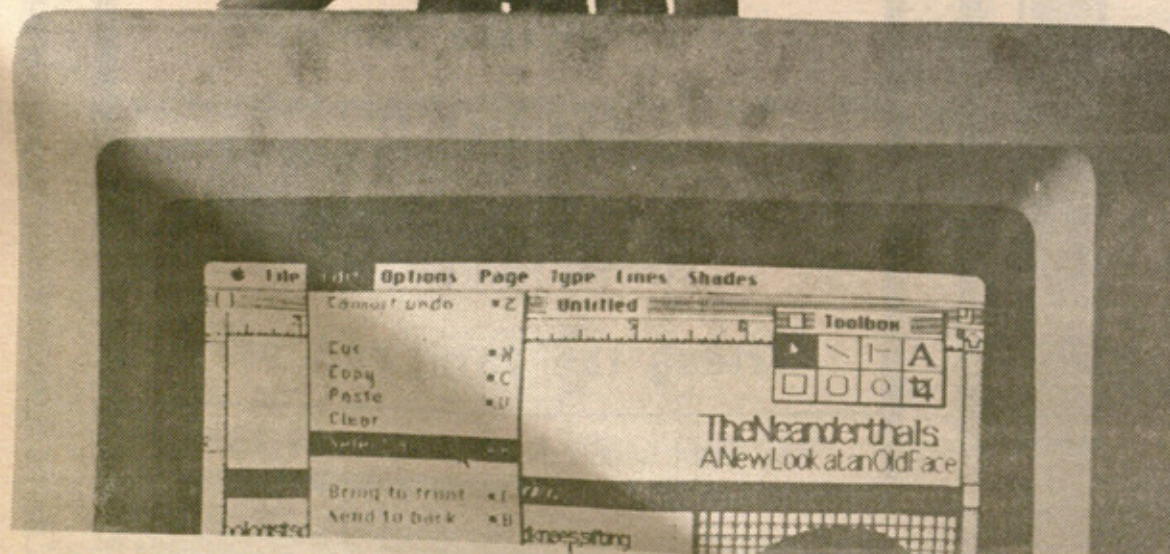

If you don't believe it, stop by the location listed below and see Macintosh for yourself. You'll wonder how you ever carried a semester without one.

Attention: Ghosts and goblins!

by Nathan Ogilvie
staff reporter

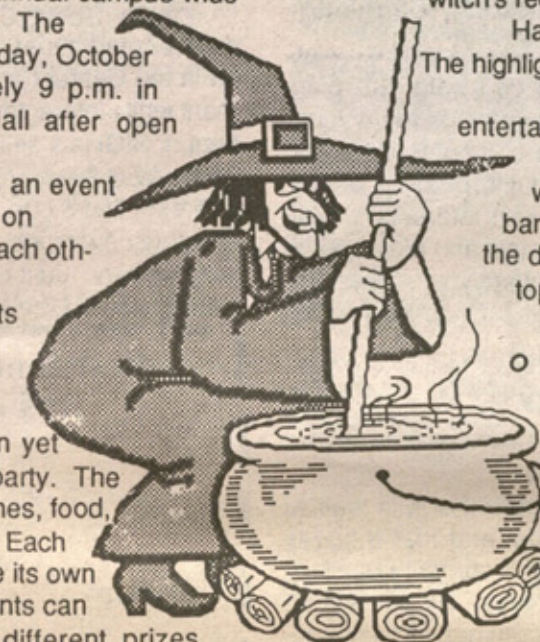

Ghosts and goblins come to haunt the campus of Freed-Hardeman College at its fourth annual campus-wide Halloween party. The party will be Monday, October 31, at approximately 9 p.m. in Pruett Banquet Hall after open dorms.

Open dorms is an event where all students on campus can visit each other's dorm rooms. Afterwards, students who are already dressed in their scariest costumes are invited to a fun yet fearful Halloween party. The party will have games, food, and entertainment. Each social club will have its own booth where students can play games or win different prizes.

Trick or treating, Oct. 31, All Dorms, Women 6:15-7:15, Men 7:30-8:30
(costumes and ID's are required)

Refreshments will consist of "bloody" apple cider, "skeleton" chips, and a witch's recipe for special Halloween cookies.

The highlight of the evening will be the live entertainment. A band called Bedrock will perform. The band plans to raise the dead as they play top rock 'n' roll hits.

The senior class expects this year's party to be the best one yet.

College Democrats organize

by Randy Baumgardner
staff reporter

A new political interest group began on campus Monday night. Around 30 students and faculty gathered in the Bible Communications-World Evangelism Building Room 105 to discuss the beginning of a local chapter of the Young Democrats of America.

The primary purpose of the society, as stated by Jim Selbe, chairman of the meeting, will be to educate all who are interested about politics and where Democrats stand on political issues.

"I have observed that many students support and will vote for candidates without knowing much about them. Students who participate in the club will be a unique, informed minority on campus," Selbe said.

The group wants to discuss with an open mind, the real facts concerning both political parties, not the falsehoods presented by both sides. Selbe said the aim of the organization will not be to convert students to the Democratic view, but merely to inform them so they will better understand Democrats.

Officers were elected at this meeting also. Randy Shannon was elected president. Other officers are Frank Smith, vice president; Shirley Eldridge, secretary; and Amy Peterson, treasurer. Faculty sponsors will be Steve Johnson and Melba (Reba) Thomas.

Members of this organization will be busy the next couple of weeks distributing signs and pamphlets in preparation for the upcoming election. They also show much interest in debating the issues with their opponents, the College Republicans.

The Young Democrats of America is not as yet an actual club on campus, but it soon will be. As soon as a charter is drawn up and approved by President E. Claude Gardner and Roy Sharp this organization will be legitimate.

Students are encouraged to attend future meetings to see what the Young Democrats are about and to decide if they wish to become members. Dues are $5 per year.

CONSIDER SOME FACTS ABOUT . . . ABORTION.

Mike Dukakis is personally opposed to abortion. He believes that such a highly emotional issue should be decided personally not by a government agency or court.

FURLOUGHS FOR CRIMINALS.

Under Mike Dukakis, first-degree murderers were made ineligible for the furlough program in Massachusetts after a Republican governor made them eligible. Crime in Massachusetts declined 13% and the murder rate dropped to half the national rate—lowest of any industrial state.

GUN CONTROL.

Dukakis supports citizens' rights to keep and bear arms. Bush has voted for Federal gun control and at that time said that "much more" was needed to curb purchases of firearms.

STOPPING DRUGS.

As Governor, Mike Dukakis helped Massachusetts high school seniors create a program which caused illegal drug use to decline twice as fast as the national average; cocaine and crack use have fallen at five times the national average.

FINANCIAL AID TO COLLEGE STUDENTS.

Dukakis supports a program which will ensure that all students have the opportunity to attend college. In the past 8 years, such aid has been drastically cut by the Republicans.

"SIGI" helps students save time and effort

Submitted by
The Center for Personal Development

Cristy is a junior education major who has a haunting feeling growing stronger each week that she really doesn't want to teach. Cindy came to Freed-Hardeman College this fall fresh out of high school and doesn't have the slightest idea what she wants to do. She has declared a major because she felt she should have one, and a friend had suggested accounting. She doesn't feel it's meant to be. Missy is a sophomore with a pre-med major and a 2.43 GPA. Reality is exerting its influence. Scott never declared a major but is in his sophomore year. Something must be done soon. All four are experiencing concern and feel that a mega-decision is sitting at their doorstep.

These students are facing one of life's major decisions, choosing a career in which to invest much time and money. How do you make such a choice as this? Close your eyes and point to a major in the catalog? Flip a coin? Ask your roommate or R.A.? Just wait and let "it happen?" Here is a suggestion for an alternative.

In addition to written materials and personal assistance by staff members, the Center for Personal Development has a cute and helpful fellow called SIGI available to help you explore career alternatives. SIGI is a very special tool that can help you plan your career. He combines the unique capabilities of the computer with thoroughly recorded information about occupations, values, interests, skills, educational programs and more. SIGI can help you examine your values, interests, and skills. Once you enter your own preferences, he searches his built-in library, and finds those careers that most clearly match those preferences. He can save you days of searching through books and other materials and may well find career options you never even knew existed.

Cristy, Scott, Cindy, Missy, and others could benefit from time invested in the Center for Personal Development while interacting with SIGI. Once begun, SIGI is a self-directed program and is available to you weekdays 8 a.m. till 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. till 10 p.m. on Thursday evenings. No appointment is necessary. Just come on up to the second floor of the McDaniel House.

Area candidates court voters on campus

by Jud Davis
staff reporter

As election day approaches, many political candidates are visiting the campus of Freed-Hardeman to persuade students to cast their vote for their cause.

Hugh Harvey Jr., attended chapel here on October 19. He was invited by the Young Democrats to come and give a greeting to the student body.

Harvey is running against Republican Bill Sipes for state representative. This position covers parts of Henderson, Chester and Madison county.

Harvey is from Madison county and has been an attorney there for the past several years.

Joe McLean, who also visited in chapel on Wednesday, is the campaign coordinator for Micheal Dukakis in West Tennessee.

McLean said that the Democrats are pushing people to people relationships with the voters. He stated that Democrats are running on the issues and the Republicans are running a demagogery and an impersonal campaign.

McLean is from Alamo in Crockett county Tennessee. He has spent ten years in Washington campaigning for congressman Ed Jones and congressman Bob Clement.

On Thursday, Bill Andersen, the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, visited the campus of F-HC. Andersen was invited by the college Republicans to give a speech in the Burk center after chapel.

In his speech Thursday, Andersen spoke of learning Tennessee by putting himself in the shoes of the workers. Andersen had gone from working in a sausage packaging plant to working under-cover with a narcotics agent. Andersen said he wanted "to create a climate that produces more and better paying jobs for all Tennesseans."

He also spoke of how he wants to bring more money into the state of Tennessee. Andersen promised he would not be a big spender like his opponent Jim Sasser. He assured that taxes would not be increased in the state of Tennessee.

Anderson stated that it is time to balance the budget and that the way to do it is to cut government spending and not to raise taxes. He also said it is time to restore common sense in defense spending which would also help the deficit.

The Lady Lions volleyball team played a double match against Trevecca College and the University of Tennessee at Martin on Tuesday, October 11. Both games were played at Freed-Hardeman College.

In the first game the Lady Lions defeated Trevecca College three games to one with scores of 5 - 15, 15 - 2, 15 - 7, and 15 - 5.

"This win was very, very important to us because it was a conference game," said Coach Joyce Bloomingburg. "After losing the first set, the team got out there and hustled to win the next three sets."

In the next match the Lady Lions were defeated by UTM with scores of 1 - 5, 3 - 15, and 5 - 15.

The results of Tuesday's games bring the Lady Lions' overall record to 7 - 13, and their conference record to 2 - 5.

Lions win doubleheader with CRC

by Mike Kelley
staff reporter

On Monday, October 10, the F-HC baseball team defeated Crowley's Ridge Junior College in a doubleheader in Paragould, Ark.

The Lions took the first game easily, outscoring Crowley's Ridge 15-0. Sophomore Jerry May pitched the first three innings, holding Crowley's Ridge hitless. Tim Tate went the rest of the way, holding the opposition in check.

Designated-hitter Tabb Loveless and second baseman Todd Holden led a powerful offensive attack by lining two hits each. Several other Lions contributed hits for the offense.

The Lions won the second game by the score of 11-0. Senior right-hander Lee Walker pitched the first four innings, without allowing a run. Left-hander Herb Woodard then relieved Walker and completed the shut-out.

Woodard was also the offensive hero. His fourth-inning grand slam was the big blow for the Lions. Other Lions who had hits included David Stoffel, Brad Walton, Kerry Sweeney, Jason Aires, Bruce Jones, and Daniel Mobley.

The sweep of Crowley's Ridge puts the Lions' record at 3-5 for the fall season.

Lions improve record to 4 - 6

by Mike Kelley
staff reporter

On Tuesday, October 18, the Freed-Hardeman baseball team lost to Jackson State Community College by the score of 7 - 5 in Jackson. On October 20, the Lions defeated Bethel College 7 - 4 in Henderson.

In the game against Jackson State, the Lions' bats were silent until the eighth inning. During that inning, catcher Kerry Sweeney led off by flying out to center field. Next, designated-hitter David Stoffel doubled down the left field line. Stoffel then scored on a single by Todd Holden. Tabb Loveless also singled in the inning.

The Lions went into the ninth inning trailing 7 - 1. But their batting came alive giving them a shot at taking the lead. Shortstop Andy Katayama walked to begin the inning. Right fielder Jason Aires then singled up the middle. Following a strike out, Sweeney walked to load the bases. Stoffel then nailed a mammoth homerun to left, plating four runs and making the score 7 - 5. After the homer, the Lions loaded the bases again, as Holden walked and Loveless and Gregg Worthey singled. The rally ended with a game-ending strike out.

Starting pitcher Stacy Horton went six innings, allowing three runs. Jerry May relieved Horton and finished the game.

The Lions defeated Bethel 7 - 4 in Henderson, bringing the Lions' wins to four.

The Lions struck first in the second inning, as the Bethel pitcher walked three batters and hit one, allowing the Lions to score one run.

In the fifth inning, the Lions scored five runs on a series of walks and singles. This proved to be all the runs that the Lions would need as they went on to defeat the Wildcats.

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

by Van McMahan

This week the senior spotlight falls on Lee Walker. Walker is from Florence, Alabama, and he graduated from Wilson High School. He is a transfer student from Northwest Junior College. Walker is beginning his second season as a starting pitcher for the Lions.

Walker had an outstanding high school baseball career. He led his team to the Alabama State Championship. While at NWJC, he led the baseball team with the lowest ERA, most wins, and most innings pitched. Walker also led Alabama in most innings pitched, and his ERA was twelfth best in the state.

In his short time here, Walker has become one of the best pitchers on the team. Last season he posted a 4.5 ERA, finished second in wins by a pitcher, and was credited with two saves. Walker wants to help turn this baseball program around and get the Lions on the winning track. He said, "The talent is good enough to do that if we can pull together as a team and never quit trying."

After graduation, Walker hopes to continue to be a part of the baseball world by coaching.
